3 Tips for Small Businesses on How to Meet the Changing Needs of Employees

BY: TERESA XIE, EDITORIAL INTERN, INC.

As small and midsize businesses emerge from more than a year of operating in a nontraditional work environment, they are met with employees who have changed expectations and needs. That's according to TriNet, a human resources company for small and midsize businesses that partnered with research firm Bredin to survey entrepreneurs and executives about how they're reevaluating their approaches to remote work and hiring.

1. Be flexible with options for remote work.
2. Be mindful of employee burnout.
3. Think expansively about hiring.

TW'S TRIGGER TECHNIQUES

Simply put, my name is Tony Washington (TW) and this is what I do. I'm passionate about sharing the skills I've acquired through real-life situations and advanced training, but this is not about me; it's about you. There is an "aha moment" that takes place with beginners and professionals alike that drives me. New shooters want to learn, and experienced shooters want to improve; this is where TW's Trigger Techniques earns its stripes. My knowledge comes from serving over 20 yrs. in the U.S. Army's 101st. Air Assault and U.S. Air Force CE, several NRA Instructor Schools, Pistol Competitions, 25 yrs. as a MD. State Trooper, 20 yrs. as a MD State Police Firearms Instructor and other advanced training. TWTT uses a blend of proven fundamentals with a modern approach. Enhanced trigger techniques, drawing your weapon, concealed carry and improved accuracy are just a few of the skills that TWTT focuses on. Concepts are explained in a way that are easily understood; no need to feel intimidated by something new. TWTT offers on-site delivery (yep....we deliver) of 80% of the training programs for 1 on 1 or small groups, in a classroom/living room type setting. Consultations are also available and recommended before purchasing that first firearm. I don't pretend to know it all, but I do know how to take your abilities to the next level and do it safely. So, when you're ready, I'm ready!
